Liturgy Matters

This is the fifth of 11 condensed articles about the parts of the Mass by Fr. Roc O'Connor, SJ, a Jesuit priest, a theologian and a composer of liturgical music. We make the articles available in order to offer insight into the Eucharist as we switch today from Mark's gospel to John's gospel, Chapter 6, the Bread of Life Discourse, and continue until the end of August. Today's article begins a look at the Liturgy of the Eucharist. The entire article appears at our web site under Faith Formation/Liturgy Matters, and it includes information about the collection, posture and gestures, and bread. We hope you will engage in a conversation with family/friends by discussing the questions at the end of the article.

V. Preparing Gifts & Hearts

The Liturgy of the Eucharist follows immediately after the General Intercessions. During the Preparation of the Gifts, designated ministers set the Altar/Table with corporal, Missal, chalices, and purificator. The deacon receives the gifts of bread, wine, and water for priest to pray over them.

Members of the faithful "set the table" with ritual vessels. The corporal is a relatively small white cloth that sits beneath the chalice (cup with water and wine) and paten (plate with bread). The presider, deacon, and ministers of the Body and Blood of Christ use the purificator (napkin) to wipe the chalice between communicants.

The GIRM (General Instruction of the Roman Missal) sets forth the following norms regarding the Altar/Table:

- The Altar should be approachable from every side, not fixed against a wall. (GIRM 299)
- Candles (two are required) should be placed on or next to it. (GIRM 117, 307)
- Also, on, or close to the Altar/Table, there is to be a cross with a figure of Christ crucified (it may also be carried in the Entrance Procession. GIRM 117, 308)
- Finally, the new directions also require the top Altar cloth to be white. This change does not mean that other colored cloths are prohibited but that the one on top needs to be white.

The ancient notion of "the Great Exchange" will help us understand better what takes place in the presentation of the gifts by the faithful. God first blessed us by creating everything. Humans take those gifts given, wheat and grapes, and make bread and wine from them. Next, we bring those gifts we first received and then labored over to present them at the Altar/Table that they might be transformed into the Body and Blood of Christ. Finally, we receive them back in Communion.

Is it an altar or a table? Well, yes. GIRM uses the term "altar" more often than "table." Still, it does use both terms to bring out the different meanings of the altar/table's meaning in liturgy. "Altar" focuses our attention on Jesus as the Passover Lamb sacrificed for Israel. "Table" underscores Jesus' table fellowship with sinners then and now, and points to the Great and Final Banquet with God in heaven we share now.
